

INDIANA STATE UNIVERSITY

2010-2011 Student Handbook

Welcome to ISU

Office of the President

Dear New and Returning Students,

On behalf of all of us at Indiana State University, it is an honor to welcome you to our campus.

As you continue your education, I hope that you will find many ways in which you can become involved in the campus and in our community. Students who become engaged in campus life early in their academic careers are far more likely to enjoy their college experiences and finish their degrees.

Should you need help, do not hesitate to talk with your professors, your adviser, or any of our well-trained and caring staff. Indiana State has many resources available to you, and this Handbook includes information on activities in which you can become involved as well as appropriate ways to resolve any issues you may encounter. The Handbook will help guide you through the campus policies and procedures that pertain to you and provide you with information on the many support services available to assist you along the way.

My wife, Cheri, and I hope to meet as many of you as possible this year and are looking forward to seeing you at various campus events. Please introduce yourself and let us know how your academic year is going. If we can be of any personal assistance, please let us know.

We extend our best wishes to all of you for a successful and productive year.
Go TREES!

Daniel J. Bradley President

For Your Information

YOU AND THE UNIVERSITY COMMUNITY

Personal Responsibility, Safety, Health, & Wellness

As a member of the Indiana State University community, you will be encountering exciting new personal and academic challenges and opportunities. ISU is committed to providing an environment which is comfortable, supportive, and safe. However, as a member of this community you must assume responsibility in order for this to occur.

Some of you are new to campus and for some this is your first time away from home. This means new freedoms and responsibilities. New situations mean new choices. To be successful, you will need to examine the choices and options and act in a way that benefits you and those around you. Make sure you read the publication University Standards to know what is expected of you as a student of ISU.

At ISU, you will encounter people from diverse backgrounds with different lifestyles and values. This diversity provides spice to our lives and expands our minds and horizons. While here, you may be defining or redefining your values and beliefs. Keep in mind that decisions you make and actions you take may have consequences that affect your life and the lives of others.

On today's college campuses, there are serious issues facing students. Some of these issues include: AIDS, acquaintance rape, sexual assault, and substance abuse. Since these issues can affect everyone, it is likely that you will encounter these problems either directly or indirectly. If you have questions or concerns about these issues, there are many resources available at ISU to assist you. You are encouraged to take advantage of these services and turn to people who care about you.

Thinking about these issues can be overwhelming; however, you can avoid many of these major problems by exercising common sense and good judgment. Stand back and think before you act. Try to take care of yourself and your needs: eat properly, exercise, get plenty of sleep, use good study habits, and utilize the resources available to you.

Personal Safety

Your safety on campus is vitally important. The need for campus security is broader than personal safety. It is central to our educational mission. There are many steps we can take to protect ourselves from crime. Many crimes occur because there was an opportunity for them to happen. For example, most crimes of theft and burglary are random, not calculated. They occur because community members leave a residence hall door, room door, window, or car door unlocked. On a campus like Indiana State University it is easy to think that nothing will happen. But crime can happen anywhere. Follow these simple steps to reduce your chances of victimization:

- Keep emergency numbers near or on the phone. Report suspicious activity, thefts, and other criminal activity immediately.
- At night, walk in well lighted areas with a friend or in a group. Utilize the Public Safety escort program if you cannot find anyone to walk with you. Be aware of your surroundings. Do not ignore your intuition; if you suspect you are being followed, change directions or head for a campus building, group of people, or blue light phone.
- Never prop open or alter a door in any manner so that it will not close properly.
- Do not admit unauthorized or uninvited persons into your residence hall or apartment. Report suspicious persons immediately.
- Keep your doors locked at all times when you are in your room and when you leave.
- Never give out information about yourself or others to strangers on the phone.
- Do not carry or flash large sums of money.
- When at campus facilities, do not leave backpacks or books unattended. Print your name inside every textbook you own.
- Engrave all items such as stereos and computer equipment. Engraving service is available through our Public Safety office. If you are a victim of a crime or have been involved in a personal safety issue on this campus, we encourage you to report this to the Public Safety Department or some other University official. The following are resources available to you:

Public Safety Department (237-5555)

Student Judicial Programs (237-3800)

Student Counseling Center (237-3939)
Vigo County Crime Victim Assistance Program (462-3319)
Blue Light Phone: red button is for 911; blue button for information

- Cultivate a campus community characterized by meaningful challenges and supports.

Students wanting more information or assistance should call 237-8111 or visit the VP for Student Affairs, Dean of Students office.

Student Concerns

The Ombudsperson can help you find solutions when addressing any concern that you may have as a student that relates to dealing with a university's system of rules and regulations. He serves as the advocate for students on campus.

As an advocate the Ombudsperson:

- offers you a confidential and neutral place where you can get answers to the questions and concerns you have about the University's policies and procedures;
- ensures that you receive fair and equitable treatment within the University system; and
- acts in an impartial and objective manner to assist you in problem resolution by finding you through University procedures.

It is important to remember the Dean of Students Office is not a student advocate. We will assist you in trying to identify the appropriate avenue to address your concern. Student concerns should be directed to Al Perone, Associate Dean of Students/Ombudsperson. Contact: al.perone@indstate.edu or 812-237-3829

Student Judicial Programs (SJP) is responsible for the publication and distribution of the Code of Student Conduct. SJP also administers the process that responds to allegations of violations to those rules and regulations by students or student organizations. It assists and advises anyone in the University community who seeks to file a complaint of an alleged violation of the Code. The conduct process includes different hearing formats depending on the severity of a violation and/or a student's prior conduct record. It can include a one-on-one meeting with a professional staff member or a formal hearing that may be administrative or with the All-University Court. Student Judicial Programs works closely with a variety of campus offices including Public Safety, Residential Life, Student Health Promotion, and many other departments and academic areas to proactively educate students about student responsibility and University expectations. SJP addresses misconduct in a process that provides for student accountability, personal growth and respect for community and others.

The Code of Student Conduct may be found on the Student Judicial Programs website, <http://www.indstate.edu/sjp/>. If you have questions regarding the Code of Student Conduct or student conduct process, please contact Student Judicial Programs in Hulman Memorial Student Union, room 821, or call 237-3800.

Indiana state law requires immunization of all new and transfer college students for 2 MMR (measles, mumps, and rubella) immunizations; a tetanus and diphtheria booster within the last ten years; Meningitis Education, and a TB skin test prior to beginning the semester. The University requires that all students have a Health History Form and a completed Immunization Record on file. All admitted students are sent the Health History Form. Registration at Indiana State University is subject to cancellation if the record of required immunizations is not on file.

All medical information about a student is regarded as strictly confidential and no information is given to any person without the express written consent of the patient.

Medical insurance is not mandatory (except for international students), but is highly recommended. There are, unfortunately, many students who have no way to pay for treatment of illnesses. ISU's service is primary health care. For those students with more serious situations, ISU must refer them elsewhere. This can be very costly for the student and often times they choose not to go, putting themselves in serious situations. More information about student health insurance is available at: <http://www.aipinternational.com/ISU/plan.html>

Student Counseling Center

The Student Counseling Center (237-3939) is located on the 3rd floor of the Student Health Services Building. The Counseling Center offers a variety of services to students at ISU. Counseling services are short-term; and if a student's needs cannot be met at the center, they may be referred to outside resources. There is no charge to currently enrolled students for any of the Student Counseling Center's services; personal counseling, testing, group programs, or consultation. It is important to note that ALL information gathered in counseling, including the fact that the student has come to the center, is held in the strictest confidence. No information is released to anyone without the express written permission of the client; unless there is a report of abuse, a court order, or immediate danger of serious harm to self or others, at which time we may be mandated to release information. Appointments may be scheduled by phoning 237-3939. Students who are in crisis or feel that they may be in danger of harming themselves may come in for walk-in appointments, at which time the first available psychologist will make a determination as to whether the student should be seen immediately or schedule for the first available.

The following areas address common questions of students.

Absences from Class

You are expected to attend all assigned classes. However, an acceptable absence may be allowed for an approved school activity. For such an occasion the faculty member responsible for the activity must obtain approval from the department chairperson and report the activity to the appropriate academic dean.

If you fail to attend class you may be assigned grade penalties. Individual faculty should outline the attendance policy established for each course. If you must be absent from classes for five or more consecutive days due to illness, hospitalization, or family emergency, and you are unable to notify the appropriate faculty, you should contact the Office of Student Affairs, 2373888. The Office of Student Affairs will inform instructors of extended absences. This notification does not serve as an excuse. You are expected, upon return, to contact each instructor regarding missed assignments

Academic Advisor

It is important that you meet and discuss your progress and academic problems with your advisor. Your advisor can also assist you with academic survival skills as well as scheduling. Keep the lines of communication open and utilize this academic resource.

International Programs and Services

International Programs and Services is the "home away from home" for international students and scholars at Indiana State University. Office professionals provide counsel and friendship for all students and scholars from abroad. In addition to working with students and faculty, they try to facilitate diverse cultural education for domestic students by bringing American and international students together through formal and informal programming.

If you are an international student new to Indiana State you must report to this office as soon as possible to show your passport, verify immigration status, clear records if transferring from another institution, and receive information. Staff are available to listen to your concerns and to assist you in the many facets of adjustment to a new culture.

ISU has an active International Student Organization (ISO), a student association supported by all international students. ISO coordinates various activities and workshops to provide assistance to newcomers. In addition, many of the nations represented at Indiana State University have student associations. During the school year, national and religious celebrations are organized in order to share the cultures and traditions of their home countries. The International Affairs Center arranges opportunities for you to share your culture, food, and language with school children and local civic and religious organizations. For additional information concerning international student organizations and activities, contact Student Activities and Organizations, 237-3852.

International Programs and Services is located in Erickson Hall, rooms 611-616. The office is open from 8:00 a.m.-5:00 p.m., Monday through Friday. The director and all office personnel can be contacted at 237- 2440 or fax 237-3602.

Study Abroad

The Study Abroad Office, Stalker Hall, 215, opens the door to adventure, and to an opportunity to better understand yourself, your country and the world, while enhancing your resume and fostering independence. We also help to ensure credits earned abroad will apply to your major, minor or general education requirements.

Programs in over 35 countries offer affordable options in English for either a semester, full year or even during the summer. One of the biggest myths is that study abroad is too expensive, but, in reality, it is more within reach than most students think. Financial aid, loans and ISU-based scholarships can be used for ISU programs and there are scholarships just for students who study abroad.

Students interested in pursuing language study can take advantage of the many sites where study in English can be combined with language courses or even pursue full immersion in any language. See the world. Live a dream. Gain an important edge in your future career. Early planning is the key to success!

FEES, EXPENSES, AND FINANCIAL AID

Academic Fees Assessment of fees is based on if you are a graduate or undergraduate student, not the level of courses you may be taking.

Undergraduate academic fees:

Are based on a chargeable credit (semester) hour fee for enrollments of less than 12 chargeable hours. Chargeable hours are defined as the number of hours a student is charged for versus the number of credit hours earned. For example, a student enrolled in MATH 111A earns one credit hour, but is charged for two credit hours—a student in MSCI 201 earns two credit hours but is charged for zero credit hours, etc.

Are based on two bracket fees for enrollments of 12 or more chargeable hours; chargeable hours are defined above. One bracket exists for students in at least 12 but no more than 18 chargeable hours, and another for students in more than 18 chargeable hours.

Include a non-resident fee for students classified as such.

Are assessed separately from Distance Education assessments. These assessments are not based on combined enrollments.

Could include laboratory fees, course fees, and/or applied music fees for supplies and equipment usage and/ or special instruction. These charges are associated with enrollment in specific classes.

Can be found in the respective Important Registration Information from the pages of the Schedule of Classes for the term in question. (Due to the early printing of the Fall Schedule of Classes, academic fees are often not available at print time. Fees can be obtained, once announced, by calling or visiting the Office of the Controller, Account Analyst Area, Parsons Hall, room P100, extension 3511.)
<http://www.indstate.edu/controller/bursar/acade>

Are due and payable in accordance with specific instructions provided in the respective Important Registration Information, from the pages of the Schedule of Classes, for the term in question. Registrar-assisted registrants will be provided amounts and written instructions at the conclusion of the assistance.

Graduate academic fees:

Graduate academic fees have the same characteristics as undergraduate academic fees (see above) with the following exceptions:

- There are no bracket fees.
- Assessments are always based on the chargeable credit (semester) hour fees which are higher than that paid by undergraduates.

Questions regarding any of these issues may be directed to the Office of the Controller, Account Analyst Area, Parsons Hall, room P100, extension 3511.

Please note: Academic fees are assessed in accordance with fee structures approved by the University Board of Trustees. The University Board of Trustees reserves the right to change fees at any future time. The right to correct errors is also reserved.
