Women's Studies Minor (21 semester hours*)

Women's Studies is an interdisciplinary field of study that is concerned with difference, history, and social justice, especially regarding gender, race, class, age, and sexuality.

Women Studies students and faculty come from a variety of disciplines and academic departments across the Indiana State University campus.

Women's Studies faculty and students are active in facilitating and supporting a variety of activities and events concerned with social justice for all people.

Foundational Studies Coursework can be used to complete credits towards the Women's Studies Minor. For more information contact: Prof. Lisa Phillips, Stalker Hall 320, 237-2706 OR Lisa.Phillips@indstate.edu
